The Vermont Migrant Education Program

We offer confidential educational services throughout the state:

- Beginner to advanced English classes
- The opportunity to obtain a high school diploma
- Referrals to other services and resources such as health care
- Job training
- Educational support for your children

Classes are scheduled according to your availability and are offered in your residence or place of work.

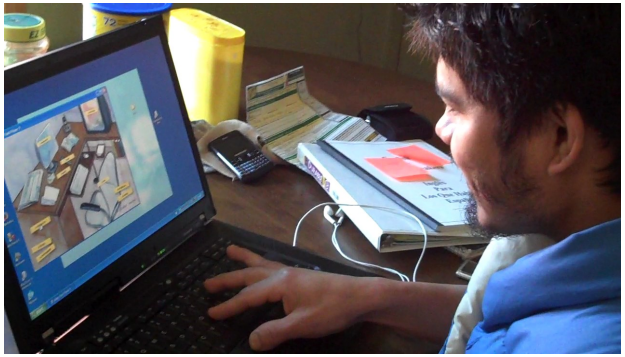
We offer free English classes to help:

- Improve communication skills
- Practice pronunciation
- Learn essential vocabulary for grocery shopping, money management, agriculture specifics and much more!

There are more than 500 students enrolled in our program.

We offer classes at more than 200 farms throughout the state of Vermont.

Vermont farms employ approximately 1,500 migrant workers from Latin America.



"I'm surprised at how much English I've learned. The classes have really helped me."

- Agustin, MEP Student

We offer classes to agricultural workers under age 22 who have not completed high school and who have moved across school district boundaries.

Our program is completely confidential. All information concerning our students is protected by law and is not shared with any other individual or organization.

Issued in furtherance of Cooperative Extension work, Acts of May 8 and June 30, 1914, in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture. University of Vermont Extension, Burlington, Vermont.
