The U.S. Department of Education (Department) has evaluated the Agency's proposed teacher shortage areas pursuant to specific provisions addressed in regulations concerning Federal student financial aid programs. In particular, 34 CFR Sec. 682.210(q)(6) and 682.210(q)(7) address the prescribed and alternative methodologies to calculate the proposed designated teacher shortage areas as well as assurances that must accompany the requested shortage areas.

The Department has designated the below academic disciplines or subject matter and geographic regions as teacher shortage areas during the 2018-2019 school year.

The Department's approval of the proposed shortage areas in our State may benefit student grant and loan recipients who are qualified to teach in the academic disciplines, grade levels, and/or geographic regions in your State where the designated teacher shortages currently occur. These benefits to student financial aid recipients, such as loan cancellations, are indicated in the regulatory provisions included at the end of this document.
